HERE PILGRIMS SAID: "BECOME THE MAN"

ASTER in the Holy Land is the most impressive occasion of the year, for thither throng pilgrims from all parts of the Christian world, deeply reverent with the spirit of the season. In Jerusalem they follow in the footsteps of Jesus on his march to the cross, and the procession that leaves the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, bearing a huge cross, and makes its way along the Via Dolorosa, offering supplications at the stations of the cross, is a spectacle that never grows dim in the memory.

Here, in the setting of the most profound tragedy in the history of the world, is incarnated the eternal spirit that had its expression 2,000 years ago, defying time and death and sweetening the world with tenderness and love. Income from fire and the incense of prayer rise along the way, and hearts are hymned to tears, while the stolid Moslem looks on with impassive face.

Next to a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, the bathing in the river Jordan is one of the precious experiences of the peasants from Russia, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey and other countries. Thousands journey to this holy stream to bathe, that they may be washed clean of their sins. And in the joy of the cleansing, those who are compelled to remain at home are not forgotten. So every pilgrim fills a bottle with the sacred water to be taken back on the tedious journey.

These reverent people even go to the extent of taking home branches and shrubs growing along the banks of the river. But one of the most picturesque sights is the carrying away of sacred fire from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

IN THE SEASON OF REBIRTH

Mankind Can See in Nature Awakening an Appeal to His Spiritual Feelings.

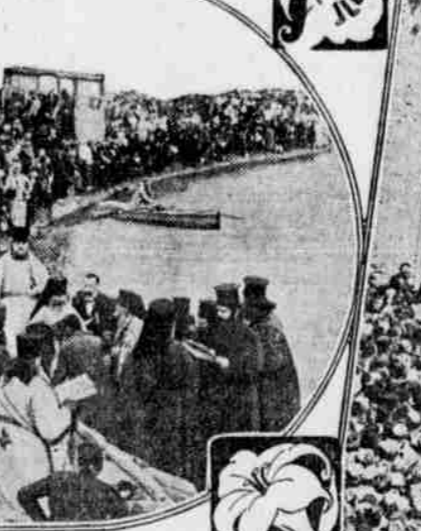

Between the penitential season of the religious year, which Ash Wednesday opens, and the weather of winter's decay and of spring's renewing, is a mysterious bond of similarity which enhances the meaning of the observance. In the order of nature it is a time of the sloughing off of the old and the quickening of the new; of the release of earth and streams from icy fetters and snow burial, and the deep, secret stirrings of new life. And these, if we will, are but the symbols of what may stir and quicken in us under the influence of this season of self-denials, both of the great things and of the small. It is the season which renews the mystery which, like death, no man understands until he has passed its portals by experience. The mystery, namely, that it is only by giving up that we acquire the greatest gifts of life. We know that the principle holds in the little things, yet the fear of trying it in the great things is such that comparatively few ever bring themselves to the supreme point, and they, their selves forgotten.

Proper View of Easter.
Through the fitting associations of the festival day of nature with the name of him who demonstrated in his life the essential things of existence, the soul's salvation through love and service, the triumph of the spirit over the flesh, we are able to regard Easter as a day consecrated to the rebirth or resurrection of our own nobler elements, of the divine principle in man.

If we so view it, if we accept it as a day of reconsecration to the ideal of the Wayshower's life, it should serve for the entombment of the dead body of our earthly passions and desires, and its resurrection into a fairer spiritual semblance, instinct with love, light and truth.

the shrine, and, jealously guarding the little flame from capricious winds and drafts, make the journey to Jaffa, board ship, and, throughout the sea voyage, often to the end of a rough journey over mountains by the most primitive means of transportation, unceasingly guard the treasure until they finally arrive among the expectant stay-at-homes with their blessings of fire and water.

Pilgrims recall one Holy Week when, in upon the peaceful spirit of adoration, came the menace of Christian massacre—so the first alarm toll it—and in a few minutes the streets, swarming with picturesque crowds, were deserted, the shops and bazaars closed. But when the garrison of the city marched through the streets, headed by the band to allay the fears of the Christians, the Moslem population turned out—not to rise against the infidel, but just like the inhabitants of any western city—to see the parade go by. Easter celebrations take on varied aspects all over the world, with curious customs and usages in the rural districts and spots remote from the great traveled highways. But it is in the foreign cities that one often sees the expression of the big, impressively picturesque note. This is especially so of the Latin countries. In Spain, for instance, one sees it, as well as in Italy and in France.

EASTER.

The Easter Hymn

Lo! Morning breaks! The shades of night
Melt as a scroll in burning light;
First day, creation's morn, the dawn
Of this when life anew is born.
Regotten of the parting breath,
The pang and agony of death;
Brought forth, to human view displayed,
In resurrected flesh arrayed.
Arise, to rise to highest height,
Beyond the gaze of mortal sight.
Great mystery divine! We bow
In solemn reverence, for now
Knowledge and reason fail to guide,
But faith is ever on our side
From empty tomb to yonder skies
Spend the rest of their lives striving To tell their truth to others who will Not believe until they, too, have Passed through at the same gate of eternal paradox—that those who have given up their lives, with no thought of a reward, are given back in another form, all they have given up, and a great deal more besides, and they who supposed that they had destroyed all earthly life as, through the eyes of another, their self living and transmitting its force and influence to the coming generations. It may be in the mighty legend of a great life, it may be in the obscure usefulness of a life of infinite consequences which the world never hears of.

True Message of Easter.
The message of Easter is that one man among humanity's millions succeeded not only in passing through the gate of death unharmed, but that of any western city—to see the parade go by. But it is in the foreign cities that one often sees the expression of the big, impressively picturesque note. This is especially so of the Latin countries. In Spain, for instance, one sees it, as well as in Italy and in France.

But in all countries, though it is the time of outpouring, it is largely judged from an individual standpoint. Easter in New York is different from Easter in Rome; and so the contrast may be carried along between many places. What is Easter to one man may not at all approach what another conceives to be the day—it may be too destitute of form and show, or too prodigal of it.

Fields of Lilies.
Loveliest, perhaps of all the sights of nature are the fields of Bermuda lilies when in bloom. The vast undulating field of lilies rises and falls like an ocean of pearly white, and a vague, sweet perfume permeates everywhere. Sailing and boating are naturally among the principal pastimes of Bermuda.
